

Sewerage facilities development rate:

Compared to drinking water facilities, the spread of sewerage facilities has been slow. In cities in developing countries sewerage facilities have not been well developed, so sewerage discharged from households and factories flows into rivers and seas without being treated, causing a dramatic deterioration in water quality.

