Population:
Due to industrialization places of employment were established in cities and as a result the population of cities increased rapidly.
In recent years, due to the fall in birth rate and the transfer of residential areas to the suburbs, suburbanization (urban sprawl) phenomenon, in which the population in the center of the city declines, has occurred in many cities.