

Per Capita Usage of Household-water:

Due to increasing urban activity and improving living standards, the usage of household water has been continually increasing. On the other hand, due to the development of better water-saving technologies and an increased awareness of the need to save water, per capita household water use has now begun to decline.

