

Special Seminar of Biodemography:

Time: 16 November 2017 14:00-22:00

Venue: Room E604, Medical Building 3 Annex, The University of Tokyo (Hongo campus)

Map: http://www.u-tokyo.ac.jp/campusmap/cam01_02_05_j.html

[Program]

14:00-15:30

Professor James Wood (The Pennsylvania State University)

15:30-15:50

Self-introduction of the participants

16:00-16:20 (15 min presentation + 5min discussion)

Shoko Konishi (The University of Tokyo), Tomoko Saotome, Keiko Shimizu, Mari S. Oba, Kanako Tsurumaki, Kathleen A O'Connor. "Predictors of spontaneous pregnancy among nulliparous women aged between 20 and 34 years: a prospective cohort study in Japan"

16:20-16:40 (15 min presentation + 5min discussion)

Futoshi Nishimoto (Nagasaki University), Shinichi Takahashi, Chihiro Shirakawa, Takahito Niwa, Satoshi Yokoyama.

"Population growth and livelihood change in a rice-farming village of central Laos"

16:40-17:00 (15 min presentation + 5min discussion)

Takumi Tsutaya (Kyoto University)

"Stable isotopic reconstruction of weaning ages in past human populations: a case study from the city of Edo in 17th century Japan"

17:00-18:30 Papuan Mumu, Goroka style

We will serve steamed tubers, vegetables, and fat less meat. Some bottles of wine.

* Fee: ¥2000 per person except for guests and students

Contact: Masahiro UMEZAKI

Email: umezaki<@>humeco.m.u-tokyo.ac.jp

Tel: 03-5841-3487

This seminar is supported by Grant-in-Aid for Scientific Research (B) (17H02233) and Inter-Institutional research of National Institutes for the Humanities, New Development in Ecohealth Research in Asia (operated by Research Institute for Humanity and Nature).