

Seeds and Farmer's Rights

The Role of Civil Society Actors in the Conservation of Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture
種子と農民の権利ー作物遺伝資源保全における市民活動の役割

ノルウェー・ナンセン研究所上級研究員（前ノルウェー有機農業連盟事務局長）レギーナ・アンダーセン氏をお招きし、タネに関する「農民の権利（farmers' rights）」の概念の背景、生物多様性管理におけるその重要性及びノルウェー及びフィリピンにおける農民のタネの権利を守る運動の実践についてご紹介いただきます。

A seminar will be held at the Research Institute for Humanity and Nature welcoming Dr. Regine Andersen, Senior Research Fellow at the Norwegian Fridtjof Nansen Institute, former Executive Director of Oikos - Organic Norway, as our main speaker. Topics will include the concept of "farmer's rights," its historical background and significance within the context of biodiversity management and food sovereignty, drawing on experiences of movements to protect farmer's rights to seeds in Norway and in the Philippines.

2017年 10月 3日（火）

14:00-17:00

総合地球環境学研究所 講演室
Research Institute for Humanity and Nature Lecture Hall
〒603-8047 京都市北区上賀茂本山457番地4

【申込・問い合わせ先】FEASTプロジェクト
feast@chiky.ac.jp / (075)707-2373 (担当：小林優子)

※要事前申込み：10月1日までに、名前・所属・連絡先をメールにてお知らせください。

Please register by October 1st by sending an email including your name, affiliation and contact information.

Program

Language: English

Yoshiaki Nishikawa Ryukoku University

西川芳昭 龍谷大学経済学部

The significance of informal seed system studies
- from the contexts of Japan and Ethiopia -

Regine Andersen Fridtjof Nansen Institute

1. "Farmers' rights" the historical background and its development within the context of international treaties, participation in policy making processes and the realization of food sovereignty

2. Learning from Norwegian experiences with regard to international agreements on protection of plant genetic resources, and civil society movements in the Philippines

(Photo: Oikos)

