Scope of the program

The RIHN Visiting Research Fellow Program brings overseas researchers to the Institute for periods of two to six months to engage in specific research in the context of one of the RIHN Programs, Projects, Divisions, Centers or Units.

Selection Criteria

Applications are evaluated by the criteria below and candidates are advised to take these into account in preparing an application:

1. Does the research proposal fit with the substance and direction of the program, project division, center or unit at which the fellow would be based?
2. Is the research plan coherent and appropriately prepared?
3. Are expected outputs clearly outlined?
4. Are academic ability and experience of the applicant sufficient for this collaboration?
5. Was the host researcher informed of and did he/she consent with the research proposal prior to submission? (If an applicant has no host, he/she receives only 1 point)

*If an applicant has no host, please check the list below and contact International Affairs Subsection before submission.

Research units and host researchers

Each Visiting Research Fellow works with a RIHN host researcher who acts as the main point of contact with the Institute. Applicants are advised to develop plans for research and activities during their stay at RIHN in consultation with the intended host researcher. In most cases, candidates will already have interacted with a potential host researcher prior to the application, but a list of potential hosts is shown below. It is required that the initial contact with a provisional host researcher is made at the latest 2 weeks prior to the application deadline. If you would like to contact a potential host you have not interacted with before, please send an email to kokusai@chikyu.ac.jp and your email will be forwarded.
